RANDOLPH

Miss Gladys Swann the Bride of Frank Dyer Jones.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Tewksbury was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Thursday evening, when Frank Dyer Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jones, and Miss Gladys Swann, were united in marriage at 9 o'clock by Rev. Fraser Metzger, the single ring service being used. The bride was becomingly gowned in white and was unattended. The ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate families and a few friends, and the guests were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Tewksbury, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jones and daughter, Miss Ruth Jones, the parents and sister of the groom, Rev. and Mrs. Fraser Metzger, J. W. Raymond, Paul Raymond, Charles Dixon, Miss Zora Tewksbury, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Montgomery, the latter the sister of the bride, Miss Hazel Dan-yow, Miss Myrtle Burridge and John Washburn. The decorations were of ferns and golden rod, which were arranged to give beauty to an already attractive home. Following the ceremony refreshments were served, and the bride couple left for a wedding trip to Lake Champlain and Lake George. The bride's going away gown was of dark blue. The bride has for several years lived in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Tewksbury, having graduated from the Randolph high school and following that, having taken a course of training in the Hartford, Conn., hospital for a nurse, which she was obliged to relinquish on account of her health. Returning here, she entered the Bell Brothers' store, where she was an efficient saleslady. The groom also was graduated from the high school here and also from the University of Vermont, since which time he has been engaged on the farm where they will make their future home. Many gifts were left with the bride, all testifying to the esteem in which the couple are held in town.

Timely Discovery of Fire Saved Vasali Sevednk's House.

The home built several years ago on South Main street by Vasali Sevednk and occupied by him was damaged to the extent of $50 or more yesterday morning by a fire which undoubtedly came in on the wires, but whether due to defective wiring or to an electric storm in progress about that time has not been determined. Miss Ada Spaulding, who lives across the street, saw the fire about 3:30 a. m. and rung in the alarm. John W. George, W. J. Beal and other neighbors were soon busy putting out the fire and hand extinguishers, as so often has happened at the time of local fires, were used with good results. Members of the fire company came early, although the fire was without the fire district. The upper part of the house, where the fire occurred, was vacant. Mr. Sevednk with his family occupying the basement. Its early discovery at such an hour is considered very fortunate.
